

Dutch Election Surprise

Rob Jetten's party, D66, won 27 seats in the Dutch election, leading over Geert Wilders' party.

Jetten's campaign was strong. His party's success shows people want change. Other close parties are conservative liberals and Green-Labour.

The election was about migration and not enough houses. Jetten's party wants to build 10 new cities to help. People want solutions.