

Disability Rights Meeting

The 18th Conference focused on rights for people with disabilities, especially First Nations, stressing dignity, equality, and identity.

The conference said disability should be central in policies. Concerns about cuts to services and re-institutionalisation were raised.

Talks stressed better access to education, jobs, and community life for disabled people. They must be included in crisis plans and global choices.