

Cookies help websites work. GOV.UK uses them to learn how you use the site. You can accept or reject extra cookies.

New rules in Great Britain ensure medical device makers check safety and performance after sale to keep people safe.

The rules help find problems with devices like heart monitors and hearing aids faster to keep people safe.

New rules make devices safer and help find risks early. This supports new health ideas and keeps everyone safe.

The MHRA checks that medicines and devices are safe. They have guides to help companies follow rules and keep people safe.