

Warm Seas in the Pacific

The north Pacific Ocean is very hot this summer. This is called a marine heatwave. It might be due to less sulphur in the air from ships.

Warm Pacific waters can change UK weather. This might bring cold Arctic air to Europe at the start of winter.

La Niña in the Pacific can make the UK colder at first in winter, then milder. It and the north Pacific heatwave will affect UK weather this winter.