

President Trump uses tariffs to control trade. High taxes on goods from other countries make things cost more. Shops worry about empty shelves.

A court said Trump used too much power with tariffs. Another court said they can stay for now. Trump is unhappy with the decision.

Trump thinks tariffs make US goods cheaper and wants companies to produce here. Some disagree with his tariff approach.

Trump's tariffs change global trade. He surprises other countries with new tariffs, keeping them guessing about his next move.

Trump might ask Congress for help if courts say no. He likes surprises. The fight about tariffs could last a long time.