

The Parole Board shared a report about being more open. It looked at public hearings, victims watching private ones, and decision summaries.

The report suggests sharing decisions with victims and letting them watch more hearings to make the system easier to understand and trust.

The Parole Board will check the report's ideas and decide what to do. More details will be shared by Autumn 2025.