

Nasa might have less money for space projects due to a fight over funding between Donald Trump and Elon Musk.

Nasa plans to halve science project funds, risking 40 space missions. These missions help us learn about space and Earth.

Some think Nasa spends too much. They want focus on Moon and Mars trips, which may stop other missions.

If Nasa stops projects, it may affect other countries. Europe might need to do more space work alone, which could be hard at first.

Projects help us watch Earth and understand climate change. If they stop, it may be harder to protect our planet.

The money plan is not final. Some want to stop cuts, but cuts might happen. Restarting stopped projects is very hard.
