

Tories Plan to End Stamp Duty

Kemi Badenoch says they will stop stamp duty for main homes to help more people own homes in England and Northern Ireland.

Badenoch shared ideas to improve the country, like cutting taxes and changing rules. She said the Labour Party lacks a clear plan.

Badenoch is the first black leader of a big UK party. She has strong views on taxes and spending and wants to make bold choices for the economy.