

Fewer Learning Disability Nurses

England might have no learning disability nurses by 2028 if things don't change. Many courses are closing, and fewer students are joining. The NHS.

Some universities stopped courses due to low sign-ups. This might cause fewer nurses, meaning less help for people with learning disabilities.

The Royal College of Nursing says stopping bursaries for student nurses caused issues. More needs to be done to attract students to nursing.