

The Charity Commission has a new online form to help people share worries about charities. This helps keep charities safe and honest.

New rules tell when to tell the Charity Commission about problems and what they can do. This helps know if they or another group can help.

Charities help people, but problems can happen. New rules show what problems to report so the right group can help fix them and keep trust.