

Scientists found that a big dinosaur, the sauropod, ate leaves from tall trees. A sauropod named Judy didn't chew her food much before swallowing.

Dinosaurs ate a lot at once, called bulk-feeding. This helps us learn about their lives and impact on the world.