

Saudi Arabia is giving a lot of money to help with the Club World Cup. This is a football event where teams from different countries play. The money.

Real Madrid is playing in the US. They paid a lot for Trent Alexander-Arnold to join early for the tournament.

The Club World Cup prize is big. Some worry it makes it tough for local teams to compete fairly.

Saudi Arabia's Public Investment Fund owns Al-Hilal and invested in DAZN to stream matches.

Some people think Saudi Arabia is doing this to help their country host the 2034 World Cup. They want to be seen as a big part of the football world.

Some people worry about players and the environment. They think there are too many matches and too much travel.

Fifa, the group in charge of world football, says the Club World Cup is good for the sport. They believe it will help football grow around the world.

The Club World Cup is getting bigger, and some people are excited. But others worry about players being too tired and the effect on the environment.