

Care Home Closing Worries Families

Sherburn House, a care home for people with complex needs, is closing due to high costs and not enough staff. Families worry about finding new homes.

Daniel's care home feels like family and helps him a lot. His family started a petition to stop it from closing in December.

The Wilf Ward Family Trust runs the home. Costs are too high. They are helping residents find new homes and staff find new jobs.