

Venezuelan Leader Wins Peace Prize

María Corina Machado from Venezuela won the Nobel Peace Prize. She thanks Donald Trump for his help and has worked against President Nicolás Maduro.

Machado faced dangers but stayed strong. She couldn't run in the election but helped another. The election was unfair, and many people protested.

Machado says the Venezuelan government is doing bad things. She wants the world to stop them. The US is acting against boats in drug trafficking.