

King Charles and Queen Camilla went to a parade for the King's birthday. People cheered as they rode in a carriage.

The King watched the soldiers. The Royal Family wore black armbands to honour the Air India crash victims.

Trooping the Colour is a big UK event for the King's birthday. People come to watch and cheer for the King and Royal Family.

The parade is a big event with soldiers and music. It's a special day for the King, Queen, and people who come to watch.