

Katie Boulter, the top British tennis player, started strong at the Queen's Club tournament. She beat Ajla Tomljanovic in a tough match with scores.

Six women, including Boulter, play at Queen's. Watson won and faces Rybakina next. Boulter and Raducanu practiced doubles on grass courts.

Boulter struggled in set two but won set three. She will play either Frech or Shnaider next. The crowd cheered her on.

The Queen's Club tournament is big for women in tennis. It's a chance for British players to shine. Fans can follow scores on their phones.