

UK Spy Case Against Two Men Dropped

Two men were accused of spying for China, but charges were dropped due to lack of evidence of a national security threat.

The Crown Prosecution Service couldn't get more evidence from the government, leading to the case collapsing and causing frustration.

The UK is talking with China to improve ties. This raises questions about how the UK handles security and spying cases.