

A woman lied about her business to get a £50,000 Covid loan. She claimed it made £210,000. The money went to bank accounts in Poland.

She said a man named Daniel helped her get a loan and not pay it back. She had no proof. She got a six-month curfew and 18-month suspended sentence.

The Insolvency Service wants the money back. Rubaszko can't run a company for 10 years. Her story shows why loans should be used wisely.
