

Dave Ryding is a top British skier. He will stop skiing after 2025-26. He won a big race in 2022. The next Olympics will be his last.

Dave learned to ski on a dry slope in Pendle. He first skied on snow at 13. He worked hard and won many prizes in his twenties.

Dave will ski for one more year with friends. He wants to do well in his last Olympics while he is strong and healthy.

Dave's story shows you don't need to be rich to ski well. He hopes to inspire young skiers to believe they can be the best too.

Chemmy Alcott says Dave's hard work helps make skiing open for all, showing many ways to succeed in the sport.
