

New Plan to Build More Homes

The UK is starting a National Housing Bank to build 500,000 homes. It will use £16 billion public money and £53 billion from private investors.

The bank will help make homes affordable and fix the housing crisis. It will work with local leaders to make sure homes are built where they are.

The government wants everyone to have a safe home. The bank will help different groups to make this happen and help communities grow.
