

Helping Roads and Railways Work Better

The CMA is studying how roads and railways are built in the UK to help make them cheaper and better.

The study will see if new companies face problems and find ways to make building faster and cheaper. This helps create jobs and move goods easily.

The CMA will talk to many people and businesses. They'll share first ideas in November. This will help the government build better roads and railways.