

North Korea fixed and launched a warship after a failed try. Leader Kim Jong Un was angry, calling it a "criminal act" that hurt the country's pride.

Four officials were arrested after the failed launch. They might be punished. The ship was fixed with balloons and ropes for balance.

Kim wants North Korea to look strong and modern. A new warship was shown as a big step forward for the country's military power.