

Uber will test self-driving cars in London next spring with help from a UK company called Wayve.

The UK government might allow these cars sooner than 2026 or 2027, but it's unclear if people can use them during the trial.

Driverless cars could bring jobs and money to the UK, but some worry about job loss. Safety is still being checked in places like the USA and China.