

The UK government and big tech firms are creating jobs in places like Edinburgh and Warwick to grow the tech sector.

AI and fintech can help with health and clean energy. The UK government wants to use them to make life better.

Tech companies are coming to the UK. They are opening new offices and creating many new, well-paid jobs.

The government will give money and help to tech companies for research and training. They want the UK to be a top place for tech businesses.

The government is bringing experts to the UK with special programmes. This helps scientists and tech experts work on important projects.

A new Spinouts Register will help support new businesses from UK universities to grow, especially in important areas like life sciences.

The UK plans to work with Europe and other countries to help its tech industry grow.