

Big protests in Los Angeles about immigration raids. US President sent soldiers to help, which is not common for law problems.

California's governor is upset soldiers were sent without permission. He thinks the President is being bossy and plans to take him to court.

Protests in LA began after immigration officers visited Latino areas. Some protests turned violent, with damage and fires. Many arrests were made.

The President sent soldiers to help the city. The mayor thinks he wants chaos. More immigration raids are happening too.