

Jewels Stolen from Louvre Museum

Thieves stole jewellery from the Louvre Museum in Paris. They used tools to break in and escaped on scooters. The museum closed for police checks.

Stolen items were tiaras, necklaces, and earrings from the 19th century. Some were French royalty's. Two items were found nearby. They are priceless.

A quick robbery took less than seven minutes. No one was hurt. Police are looking for four people. Similar thefts have happened in France.
