

Donald Trump wanted a big parade for his birthday, also the US Army's 250th birthday. Some worry about the cost and road damage.

In 2017, Trump wanted a parade in the US like one he saw in France. Many said no due to cost and street damage, but plans are now moving forward.

Some think the parade shows too much power, like in countries with bossy leaders, and worry it's not good for the country.

The parade has tanks, soldiers, and fireworks. Some people are upset because it costs a lot. They think the money should help veterans instead.

Some think the parade is Trump showing off. They worry it makes the military look like it supports him too much, which they don't want.

Some think the parade shows fascism, where one person has too much power. They worry this could be bad for the US.
