

The government will list bad officers. Police must check this list before hiring to keep the police honest.

The new rule will include special police forces like the British Transport Police and Ministry of Defence Police. If someone is on the barred list,

The government wants people to trust the police. This change will help make sure officers do their jobs well and stop bad ones from returning.