

Working Together in Social Care

Social care helps people who need extra support. New ideas should include everyone, or some might feel left out, like if they can't use a computer.

Co-production means working together. People who use care help make new tools and services. This makes services better and fairer for all.

Listen to everyone in social care. SCIE's Co-production Week celebrates sharing experiences to improve care. Let's help everyone together.