

Kemi Badenoch, a Tory leader, wants to improve and learn from mistakes. She aims to change things, but it will take time.

Badenoch is checking if leaving the ECHR could help the UK handle illegal migration and deport criminals. She wants a clear plan first.

The Conservative Party lost support and council seats. Badenoch is criticised but confident. The party distances from Truss's mini-budget problems.

Badenoch thinks leaving the ECHR might fix immigration issues but is open to other ideas. A review will be shared at the party's conference.
