

Football Fans Ban in Birmingham

The government is working with police to let Maccabi Tel Aviv fans watch a football match in Birmingham despite safety worries.

The police called the match "high risk" due to past fan issues. Some, like Sir Keir Starmer, think stopping fans is wrong. Leaders say act sooner.

Some support the ban for safety. Emily Damari thinks football should unite people. There have been protests at sports events due to the war in Gaza.