

Jewels Stolen from Louvre Museum

Two people were caught stealing jewels from the Louvre in Paris. They used tools to break in during the day. The jewels were very valuable.

Police caught one suspect at the airport. Thieves left gloves and a jacket. Police found DNA, which helped find the suspects.

The museum's security was weak. Some cameras didn't work. The jewels are now in a safer place. Experts worry the jewels might get broken.