

Join the Government as a Science Expert

The UK wants science experts to help make important decisions. These jobs use science skills to make a difference and are exciting and rewarding.

Jobs for Chief Scientific Advisers and Committees give science advice and help understand science. These roles can be part-time.

The government wants everyone to apply. They support diversity and inclusion. Find more details on the government website.