

John feels sad without pets for the first time in years. His house feels empty without his dog, Herbie. He talks to his late parents and friends.

John misses his mum and dad. He wishes they talked more. He regrets not hearing his dad's war stories.

John talks to Barry, a friend who passed away. Barry was funny and warm. John misses him and adds him to his list of people he talks to in his thoughts.

John talks to his dog, Herbie, for comfort. Even though Herbie is gone, John still feels like Herbie answers him.

Nigel Farage wants attention in politics. He made promises on taxes and benefits but didn't say how to pay for them. People doubt his ideas will work.

Tottenham won a trophy. Some fans are happy, others want changes and new players for a better future.

Rich people in Thailand buy lion cubs as pets but forget they grow up and can be dangerous. This shows they don't think about what animals need.

John is not ready for a new dog yet. He misses Herbie too much. Maybe in the future, he will feel ready to welcome a new pet into his life.