

England had its driest spring since 1893. The National Drought Group met to talk about water problems and summer plans.

Some places in England are dry. The Environment Agency checks water. Water companies fix leaks faster and talk more with people.

A small Derbyshire water company has banned hosepipes. Big companies haven't yet, but are watching. Rain helped, but more is needed to stop droughts.

The Government plans new reservoirs and fixes leaks. Save water and report problems. The Met Office warns of more dry weather, so be careful with water.
