

Parents are upset because a man hurt children at schools. He worked with children with special needs and did bad things for many years.

The police caught a man who hurt many children. People are upset because they think schools should have acted sooner when warned by parents.

Saj Golby helps parents with children who need extra help. She says schools should listen to parents and wants more help for families about safety.

A councillor is upset. Her child is at one of the schools. She wants to know what happened and thinks schools and the council should do better.

Daniel Clarke is in jail. He might face more charges. The police are still investigating. The school can't say much yet.

Solihull Council acted fast for safety. Clarke is in jail now. The investigation is ongoing, so more details can't be shared yet.