

The UK wants to stop bottom trawling in some sea areas to protect the sea floor and animals. This will help sea areas recover.

A meeting will ask people about stopping bottom trawling in some places. This will help lobsters, soft corals, and seabeds to be healthy.

The government plans to protect the sea by 2030, help coral reefs, and support small islands to improve the sea and climate.

Groups agree with the plan to protect sea life. The government wants the sea to stay healthy for everyone now and in the future.