

In Ballymena, people threw things at police after a protest about a sexual assault. Cars were set on fire, and house windows were broken.

The trouble began on Monday and went on until Tuesday night. It caused damage and worry for people there. A BBC reporter visited to tell the story.

News can be scary for people with learning disabilities. It's good to have support and someone to talk to if they feel upset or worried.

If you ever feel scared or upset, remember to talk to someone you trust. It's okay to ask questions and share how you feel.