

UK Talks About Myanmar

The UK talked about a big earthquake in Myanmar on 28 March. It made things hard for people and many had to leave their homes for safety.

The UK gave £25 million to help those in need and £108 million to Rakhine State. They want to stop fighting and keep people safe.

The UK helps gather proof of human rights problems in Myanmar to hold wrongdoers accountable and asks how to help Myanmar's people more.