

Nigel Farage is a leader who stands out. He knows what his voters want and does things differently. Some think he could be Prime Minister.

Farage wants to change rules, like ending the two-child benefit limit and bringing back winter fuel payments for older people. Some voters like these ideas.

Labour, led by Keir Starmer, is worried about Farage's promises. They think his plans are not realistic, but Farage knows his supporters well.

Reform UK wants to cut taxes and spend more money, but some think their plans aren't well thought out.

Some people don't trust politicians. They worry about Farage as Prime Minister. It's important to think about risks and protect democracy.
