

AJ Tracey has a new album, "Don't Die Before You're Dead." It's more personal, sharing more about his life and feelings.

He talks about his mum helping him and friends stay safe. They made music at his house. His cousin remembers writing songs there.

AJ wants safe places for young people, like youth clubs. He wants his music to connect with people and show he's human too.

AJ took four years to make his album. He wants to be proud of it. His new album is out now, and people are excited to hear it.
