

France is having a hard time with.

France owes a lot of money. They need to pay €67 billion for debt. This is more than school spending. They might need help from the IMF.

President Macron wants to fix things with a new prime minister. They need to agree on a budget, but it's hard because people want different things.