

China Spy Case: Why It Stopped

Two men were accused of spying for China, but the case was dropped. A witness, Matt Collins, couldn't say China was a threat as it wasn't policy.

Matt was surprised the case was dropped. He thought he had enough evidence, but more was needed. He said China is a threat but not an "active threat."

Collins first spoke in December 2023. New rules needed more proof. Collins spoke again but didn't change his mind. More people will talk soon.