

The UK is using AI to help councils plan faster. A tool called Extract reads papers quickly to help build 1.5 million homes faster.

Extract changes old paper plans to digital fast, saving council workers time and helping them decide quicker. It works well in tests.

The government wants all councils to use Extract by 2026 to make planning easier, faster, save money, and build more homes.

The Prime Minister wants to make it quicker and cheaper to build homes. This will help everyone.

Planning info will be online for all.
The government may make an app to help councils use Extract better.
