

UK Changes Asylum Rules

The UK wants to change asylum rules. People may stay for a short time and go home when it's safe, like in Denmark.

New rules try to stop people coming to the UK in small boats. Some in government agree, but some in the Labour party do not.

The home secretary likes Denmark's way to keep numbers low. The UK will help people in danger but wants more control. Some worry it's too strict.