

A painting by Peter Paul Rubens might leave the UK. The government stopped it for now so a UK museum can try to buy it. It's worth £8.4 million.

Rubens was a famous painter. His art was bright and lively. This painting shows his early work and helps us understand his style.

The painting "Cimon Falling in love with Efigenia" shows Rubens' unique style. The UK wants to keep it for people to see and learn from.

The government will wait until 15 September 2025 for someone in the UK to buy the painting to keep it here for everyone to enjoy.
