

A 15-year-old girl was wrongly strip-searched by police at her school in east London in December 2020. They found no drugs.

Officer Kristina Linge said sorry for mistakes. She tried to help Child Q feel okay, but the search was wrong. Two other officers are also accused.

A police officer said search training isn't good enough. She forgot to record a search until five weeks later. The hearing is still happening.