

Actor Walks to Support Disabilities

An actor with Down's syndrome walked 16 miles to show how hard it is for people with learning disabilities to get healthcare.

Emma from Grapevine says people with learning disabilities need more help to see a doctor, like longer visits or someone to help them talk.

People with learning disabilities may die from treatable causes. The NHS is helping by teaching doctors to make healthcare easier for them.