

30 countries, including the UK, are upset about an attack on aid workers in Sudan. The attack was on a food convoy in North Darfur on 2 June.

The attack broke the law. Civilians and aid workers should be safe. Countries want aid access and fighting to stop for safe leaving.

Countries want to investigate the attack. They are sad about the lives lost and want fighting groups to follow the law. Attacks must stop.