

Cieran Slicker is a young football player. He played for Scotland against Iceland for the first time. Scotland lost 3-1.

Slicker played because other goalies were hurt. He was nervous, made mistakes, and lost confidence. It was a tough night for him.

Slicker, 22, joined Ipswich Town from Manchester City. He's played in cup games, not league matches, and for Scotland's under-21 team.

Scotland's coach, Steve Clarke, said Slicker wasn't ready. Clarke may need a new goalkeeper as many are hurt and choices are limited.

Scotland needs a good goalkeeper. Clarke might ask others for help. It's a tough choice, and Clarke is upset. They must decide quickly.
